

Harvard Griffin GSAS Science Policy Group Presents

Science & Tech Policy Career Panel

Monday, February 12th, 4-5:15 PM

RSVP for a Zoom link: bit.ly/scitech-pol-careers

A career at the intersection of science, tech, policy, and society can include a wide variety of roles and employers. Come hear from Harvard Ph.D. holders about their experiences and advice getting competitive fellowships, job searching, working in policy(-adjacent) positions, and more!

Dr. Rachel Silvern | Program Officer, Board on Atmospheric Sciences and Climate & Polar Research Board, National Academies of Science, Engineering, and Medicine (Earth and Planetary Sciences '19; former California Council S&T Policy Fellow)

Dr. Steph Guerra | Assistant Director for Health Security and Biodefense, White House Office of Science and Technology Policy (Biological and Biomedical Sciences '18; former AAAS Fellow with the VA and Mirzayan Fellow with National Academies)

Dr. Garrett Dunlap | Head of Science and Innovation, British Consulate-General, New York (Biological and Biomedical Sciences '22; former Science Diplomacy Fellow with National Science Policy Network)

Dr. Andrew Greenspon | Experimental Quantum Physicist, MITRE (Applied Physics '21; former student leader with Harvard Science Policy and Science in the News)

Harvard Griffin GSAS Science Policy Group is generously supported by GSC